Charles is told by his mother to go down to
to meet a beautiful girl. He goes out not expecting a colored gentleman and but a driver of the same sort and to the same place as the girl's home
and the girl is not the same as the one he was told of.

A ~~THE~~ LUCKY ACCIDENT"
One Reel Bull's Eye Comedy
Featuring Charles Puffy

Charles is told by his mother to be home at eight to meet a beautiful girl. He goes out and sees a car, containing a colored gentleman and his chauffeur, turn turtle, hiding the occupants under the wreck. Puffy goes to rescue them and is mistaken by the ambulance driver for the injured party and taken to the hospital where he insists that there is nothing wrong with him, until he sees a pretty nurse making a fuss over a patient. Then he decides he is sick.

The other patient is discharged by the doctor and starts to seal a letter. The stamp drops on the floor and sticks to a roach's back. The stamp appears to walk up the wall. Then the cat jumps behind a portrait and shifts around, making the portrait appear to have life. The patient thinks he has heeby-jeebies and jumps back into bed.

Puffy, who has received loving attention from the pretty nurse, suddenly recalls his date and rushes home and rushes out swathed in a sheet, scaring a negro and a child, arriving home to find that the beautiful girl he came to meet is the same pretty nurse. They embrace.
